I'm assuming this can wait until after the festival. Pictures would increase the probability of getting some solid answers. I'd be happy to email the volunteers early next week with photo(s) if that's cool with you.

Thanks,
Jon

A photo would tough as I'm scrambling to get ready for a festival right now. They are black mesh tubes of various sizes and diameters approximately 1' to 2' long. Dave

OK, will do. Any chance you can share a photo of a shellfish net that I can include in my request. I'm glad to hear the Refuge is concerned about this issue.
Thanks,
Jon

Hi John, we think it would be worth asking your Volunteers. Especially about the two items I mentioned. About 2 miles out is where the currents deposit a lot of stuff so what your in-laws reported makes sense.

We are collecting shellfish nets to show that shellfish farming pollutes the Refuge and it's possible the radar came off a boat that sunk a while back.

Thanks, Dave

Hi Dave, I wish I knew. Our volunteer left the park around 11, before many of the volunteers returned. I could maybe send an email directly to those who signed up... I do know my in-laws cleaned the spit and said there wasn't much debris until they hiked at least two mile in.

Hi Jon, we are quite curious about some of the debris your beach cleaners found last weekend. For example they appear to have encountered a lot of shellfish protector nets and a boat radar. Can you tell us where they were cleaning in our area? Thanks, Dave
