As far as I know, their application is still working its way through ACE. I am pretty sure that they have not yet applied to the County for their Shoreline permit. Greg Ballard is suppose to let me know when he gets their application.

Last time I talked to ACE, they were still waiting on their Sect. 106 clearance. Matthew Bennett is the new ACE lead on this project (Matthew.J.Bennett@usace.army.mil).

Thank you Jennifer. Where are things at with the Dungeness shellfish aquaculture? I will see Chairman Allen in Spokane next week and it would be nice to know in the event that he corners me with a finger in the chest.

FYI. Jamestown S'Klallam Natural Resources Director, Scott Chitwood is stepping down on October 1. Hansi Hals will take his place and he will continue to work with the Tribe in a part-time capacity.

Scott has been active in discussions related to Oyster Aquaculture on Dungeness NWR and has also been a great partner on various projects during his time in this position.

DRMT and Dungeness Friends,

Forwarding a message to you from Scott, below:

Dear Dungeness River Management Team Family: I am letting you know that we are making some changes here at the Tribe. I am stepping down as Natural Resources Director effective October 1.

Hansi Hals, long time DRMT alternate for the Tribe, is taking over as our Natural Resources Director on that date. My hope and desire is that you all treat Hansi with the same friendship, comradery and respect that you have shown me these last 14 years. Hansi will do a fabulous job for the Tribe, of course.

It has been very rewarding serving the Tribe as their representative on the DRMT all these years. Working with you all has been a distinct pleasure. I have appreciated all of our discussions, and all of the guest speakers we have hosted over the years. In the future, some continued interaction with the DRMT is possible as I am staying on as a part time employee for the Tribe, helping out where I can.

For consistency purposes, and for the very near term, we have decided that I will go through the November meeting as the Tribe's rep and then Hansi will take over beginning at the December meeting.

Thank you for your continued interest and support for our watershed!

Scott Chitwood
